A: Videos Zealous Gamer covering the BFME2 game. Videos CG World Moderator: playthrough of Lord of the Rings: The Battle for Middle-Earth II Regulation of the gliadin-responsive promoter of the 13-kDa glutenin genes of common wheat (Triticum aestivum L.) by a tandemly repetitive DNA segment. A 180-bp long sequence element in the D genome of common wheat (Triticum aestivum L.) was found in the 5' flanking sequence of a class of gliadin-responsive (GI-R) genes in the Glu-1 gene cluster. The 5' portion of this repetitive element consisted of six tandemly repeated motifs, each of which contained two similar zinc-finger motifs (CACTA). The repeated element is located in the 5' flanking sequence of four of the seven 13-kDa glutenin subunit gene (Glu-1 genes) in the Glu-1 gene cluster. The 5' flanking sequence of Glu-1 gene 2, the non-gliadin-responsive (GI-R) gene in the Glu-1 gene cluster, did not contain such a repetitive element. Thus, the position of the sequence element is correlated with the gliadin-responsive property of the associated genes. The effects of the repetitive element on the activity

"All the politicians, in France and the rest of Europe, have totally lost touch with what life is like for ordinary people," complained the satirical weekly, "Le Canard." On the eve of the referendum, a couple of prominent far-left voters, frustrated by what they saw as feckless negotiators, took matters into their own hands. As they left a baker's shop on the Rue de la Vasse in the 18th arrondissement, their shopping bags were snatched by three members of the Femen street-theater group, who then unfurled their impromptu placards. "Stop eating babies!" one read. "Pigs are better than élites!" read the other. The trio, two Latina and one Ukrainian, was charged with inciting a public disturbance. They were given fines, then released. It was not the first time the newsweekly "Le Canard" had brought Femen—a loose-knit band of radical activists that takes its name from a Hieronymus Bosch painting of a nude female torso surrounded by a cordon of bishops—into its political column. Femen are on the political fringes of left-wing parties and movements in France and across Europe. They specialize in disrupting anti-abortion marches; the female-only rally of the liberal party, the Parti socialiste (PS); and a gathering of the French National Front in Marseille. In France, the activists have taken to dressing in white suits and cloaks emblazoned with photos of female genitalia and a swastika. Their slogan is "Nous sommes toutes ensemble!"—"We are all alike." In the French media, they are seen as female equivalents to the Women's March on the Bastille that hit Paris this month and added a new national anthem—reappropriating the traditional Marseillaise in the process—to the French political repertoire.
