i have tried to add a small video to the documentation but the tool generates a simple viewer for the video and there is no option to include html content in the video. i'm still looking for a simple video editor or converter. i just updated the documentation on the hiqpdf web site. the new version of the html to pdf converter for.net is a release version and it has some new features. we have moved the html to pdf converter for.net to github and we have moved the license to a new section in the site. the new license will allow you to use the software under the gnu general public license version 3.0 or later. you can download the software from the github project page. the software is a c# class library and it has the same features that i listed in this thread. the software uses the chilkat framework to perform the html to pdf conversion. this is a library that is licensed under the gnu general public license version 3. the chilkat framework can be downloaded from the chilkat website. i just added some new features to the software and i just posted the change log to the github project page. hiqpdf html to pdf converter for.net is a native.net library that you can use to convert html to pdf documents with just a few lines of c# code. the converter supports the latest html5 and css3 features and converts the html into pdf files preserving all the css styles. the converter offers the most advanced html to pdf conversion technology and allows you to convert any html document or url. the converter has a simple and clean api to convert html to pdf documents with just a few lines of code.

HiQPdf HTML To PDF Converter For .NET V10.17.0

hiqpdf library provides the most powerful and flexible features of pdf conversion libraries, allowing you to convert documents to pdf, html, text, and images. hiqpdf can handle all types of documents including pdf documents, and it also supports converting multiple documents at once. hiqpdf library allows you to convert html documents to pdf, html, text, and images. you can easily convert your html documents or a url to pdf and save them to a local file or send them to a remote url. It is a fast and easy to use pdf conversion library. i have used the tool and it is quite powerful and it does what is says on the tin. i can't find any documentation on what features are there for .net versions of the api. i know it has the ability to add form fields and it seems you can add labels and descriptions to forms. i will give it a try. i looked at the cost and pricing on the website and it is very reasonable. i look forward to seeing what other features you have added. i have added a category for pdf to html converters as i have used abcpdf8 and it is a tool i'm familiar with, there are a couple of differences that you should be aware of. the abcpdf8 can be used to convert a single document, but the html to pdf converter for .net can be used to convert multiple documents. you can either convert multiple documents, or convert one document and save the html file and include it in a new pdf document as a new page in the pdf document. the tool also has the option to add a logo and menu to a new document. this is useful for creating the table of contents for a document. you can either specify the logo and menu in the html code for the document or include the html file and all it's included css styles, javascript, and any images or other content in the html file. you can add a logo and menu in the html code of the document and simply use the xml code generated by the tool in your documents. 5ec8ef588b
